made that observation before me because, drum roll
MassiveStar Studios has come up with a racing adventure

Hatirjheel.

The Game

Titled 'Hatirjheel Dream Begins', it is a racing game which will include 31 levels of sheer adventurous your way through obstacles and survive various emergencies all while enjoying the splendid back-droh, it's not just a back-drop. According to its game developers and designers, the location is quite realistic imitation of our Hatirjheel. Also, what interests me the most is that, other than the typical car, you can use boats as mode of transportation allowing you to soak up the glory of Hatirjheel from all possible viewpoints. It is suitable for anyone of 8 years or above and is initially being made for PC usage; however, we hope to see it available on iOS platforms in future. It will be launched very soon after which the developers plan to regularly update it.

A Reality Check

But let's be honest here, how much potential does this game truly have? Although this is not the first time making a video game, this is definitely its most extensive work. I don't want you have such high expectations that you feel disappointed when you try it yourself. If you are thinking from a gamer's point of view, you can understand that this is the first creative initiative taken by a Bangladeshi company and the developers behind this game, while not as experienced, are very young and truly quite talented. I applaud the initiative behind the game, and I assure you it will be very exciting to play. But it is not the time yet to compare it to foreign games; this isn't really about the game itself. Is it?

The Bigger Picture

Let me ask you this, have you ever taken interest in the politics or infrastructure of your country? Probably quite old because the youth of Bangladesh seems to focus on the negative aspects of our country quite frankly, lost faith. So no, this is not just a game. This is an attempt to restore faith in Bangladesh as a symbol of the development this country has been able to make and a pathway to a brighter future. By turning our culture into a video game they want to reach the minds of the young and give them a sense of pride. It will instigate the feeling of helping our country because there is still hope. There is a lot of prospective for our youth to ensure the future of this country. This game was targeted especially for those who have faith and are not afraid to dream big.

Wise Words

The CEO of MassiveStar Studio, SM Mahabub Alam shared his perspective of today's generation and the facts which none of us can deny. He points out that our first instinct after graduation is to leave the country abroad; at this point the word is no longer 'go' but 'flee'. We are so hesitant to stay back that if this continues, we will have a very dark future. Also, he added that success can be found in Bangladesh as the economic opportunities are blooming and like any living thing, it just needs nourishment; something that we are full of. So for the youth, this game is a platform. Make use of it!

The IT sector of Bangladesh just took a huge leap forward and who knows, we might soon generate a global market in international markets. Clearly, the technology in Bangladesh has more potential than most of us give it. What you're thinking, what's the point of all this? I'll tell you this; Hatirjheel Dream Begins is a revolution for the youth of Bangladesh. Be smart and invest your money and time into the game which serves the needs of the youth. Think of it this way, you are such a fan of technology that you can't go an hour without checking your phone. Why not push the IT sector of your country to new heights? It will only come back to benefit you.

Okay, now enough of the deep philosophical statements; on a more lighter note, I am literally squirming on that game, can't wait!
